
Student's Scientific Activity

Student's Scientific and Research Work conferences have been organized annually throughout the existence of our Faculty and are one of the oldest among Czech medical faculties.

Master's and bachelor's students have the opportunity to propose their research topics or take an interest in existing research projects started or planned at all departments of the Faculty of Medicine and the Faculty of Medicine. Currently, some multi-year research projects of PhD students have been initiated and others will follow. Students can enquire with their teachers about the details and possibilities of participating in the projects and other similar opportunities in medical and biomedical research.
